A graduate of The Curtis Institute of Music where he studied with Arnold Steinhardt and Jascha Brodsky, Xiao-Fu Zhou is a renowned soloist on both violin and viola. He has been guest soloist with The Chamber Orchestra of Philadelphia nine times since graduating and made his New York City debut in 1995, receiving praise from The New York Times as a "master of his instrument...something of a poet." Following a performance with an orchestra, the Philadelphia Inquirer wrote, "Zhou led the chase, including a cadenza that brought the audience to its feet." Programs include concertos for violin and orchestra, recitals for violin or viola and piano, and solo violin pieces by Brahms, Beethoven, Strauss, and Gershwin. He balances an active performance schedule with a deep dedication to music education. He is an adjunct teacher at Temple University, gives Master Classes at other area colleges and serves as artistic director and conductor of the Main Line Youth Chamber Orchestra.

Mr. Rosen spent a 40-year professional career as a member of some of the world's leading orchestras. He spent 27 years as a violinist and keyboardist with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, from which he retired in 1999. He has also held the position of Concertmaster of the Boston Pops (where he also occasionally functioned as an arranger), Associate Concertmaster in the Detroit Symphony, and has been a member of the Cleveland Orchestra, the American Symphony, the New School Chamber Orchestra and Festival Casals. Mr. Rosen's piano experience includes rehearsal accompanist for Cleveland Orchestra Chorus under Robert Shaw and rehearsal accompanist for Lake Erie Opera.

In the last 15 years, he has appeared as a solo recital pianist in Cambridge MA, Newburyport MA, Boston, New York City and Chestnut Hill, PA.

Other than music, his hobbies and interests include mathematics and philosophy, computer science, and poetry.
